PREFACE

THE wealth of information, — historical, statistical, descriptive, scientific, and other, — hidden, because of imperfect bibliographical record, in the publications of the several States of the American Union, is second only to that in the publications of the United States Government, which also until recent years had been poorly recorded and inadequately known. Within the past twenty years much has been done in Government bibliography, and the organization of bibliographical work by the Superintendent of Documents brings the bibliography of national publications into a comprehensive and adequate system. Unfortunately, less progress has been made in the correlated field of State publications. The first endeavor to catalogue systematically the official issues of the several States of the Union was, so far as is known to the editor, his list of State publications given in the appendix to the American Catalogue of 1884–90. An attempt was then made to present as complete a bibliography as was possible for that period, — first, by direct correspondence with the State Librarians or other State officers of the several States; second, by the use of such incidental data as could be obtained from catalogues and reports of State Libraries (those of Massachusetts being by far the best in this respect); third, by personal visits to State Libraries, many of them having been visited by the editor in the year 1890–91 and since. At the beginning some State Librarians, notably those of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and New York, responded promptly and fully; in other cases not a word could be had from the State. Then, and to a large extent since, the Massachusetts State Library annual lists of accessions have been chief sources of information where that could not be had from State authorities. Some kind of a list for the 1884–90 period was, however, presented for each State. A second list, for 1890–95, was made a similar supplement in the American Catalogue for that period, and at that time better returns from other States, particularly those of the mid-West, Kansas, and California, were obtained.

In the succeeding period, progress has been made in two important directions. In several of the States special bibliographies have appeared, either of publications within the State or of State publications proper; and State Librarians have been vitalized and brought into line with general library progress by the organization of a National Association of State Libraries in affiliation with the American Library Association. Nevertheless, the office of State Librarian is still in some States perfunctory or merged into that of some other State official, and in several States the State Library and its executive post have been notoriously a football of politics, although the State Librarianship is one of the positions where experience, skill, and therefore continuity, are most needed, and should therefore be most free from removal for partisan reasons. There has already been enough progress in reform, however, to make more possible than heretofore a general bibliography of State publications.

In addition to this development within several of the States, there have been initiated since the present work was undertaken a number of enterprises covering the publications of the several States in special fields. Of these the most important work is the "Index of economic material in documents of the States of the United States," edited by Adelaide R. Hasse and made practicable through the endowment of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, a work more comprehensive than its title indicates and of exceptional bibliographical value because of the thoroughness of treatment which the resources at the command of the editor and her special experience in this field made possible. The Index "undertakes to deal only with the printed reports of administrative officers, legislative committees, and special commissions of the States and with Governors' messages . . . It does not refer to constitutions, laws, legislative proceedings or court decisions, except in so far as they happen to be found in the class of documents above mentioned." Notwithstanding this modest disclaimer in its preface, this Index covers a very large part of State publications in thorough topical analysis. In her relation as librarian of the Department of Public Documents in the New York Public Library, Miss Hasse was given the opportunity to obtain for that library as comprehensive a collection of State publications as could be gathered, a task made the easier by her previous participation in the formation of the library of United States government documents in the office of the Superintendent of Documents at Washington. On the basis of this collection and by help of personal visits to many of the States, and with the aid of an adequate staff of indexers and compilers, Miss Hasse has been able to make this publication of the Carnegie Institution a monumental work, while the collection of documents which she has built up for the New York Public Library has been of great service in the compilation of the later lists in the present volume. The issue of the Index in individual parts, devoted each to a separate State, was begun with the publication of the index for Maine in 1907, and it is the hope of Miss Hasse to complete it within a few years. A topical index to labor reports of the several States was made a publication of the national Bureau of Labor in 1902, during Carroll D. Wright's administration. Lists of publications of the several States relative to health boards, hospitals and the defective classes are to be found in the great catalogue of the Library of the Surgeon General's Office, initiated by Dr. John S. Billings, now Director of the New York Public Library. A further contribution to State bibliography is the series of bulletins on comparative legislation begun by the New York State Library in 1891, during the administration of Melvil Dewey and continued annually for many years.

The researches of the present editor, in preparing a comprehensive check-list for the general field of State publications, have more and more shown how valuable is the material found here and there in the unorganized heap of State publications, or rather in the many heaps which make up the great aggregate. The variety and differentiation of State publications in the several States, while increasing the difficulties of the explorer in these bibliographical labyrinths, have nevertheless a distinctive and definite value. It is a happy feature of our federal system, as has before been pointed out, that one State desiring to experiment in legislation or administration may profit by the experiences of sister States which have already produced good or ill results from like experiments. It is true that a large proportion of State publications are not of general interest outside or indeed within the State, yet for comparative purposes their record may be important and valuable, and, aside from perfunctory or merely administrative reports, there is surprising wealth of material in State as well as Government issues. Many of the States, particularly those of the far West and "the new South," issue fact-books as to their resources, etc., which can be had for the asking by public libraries, and which should be at the disposal of readers throughout the States from which emigration sets west and south. The regular or special reports of Boards of Agriculture, of Boards of Health, of Bureaus of Labor Statistics, of Insurance or Railroad Commissioners, the records of prison and reformatory development, the historical publications of several of the States, — all these are of real value to inquirers in other States, and many of them should be on the shelves of the more representative libraries.

Moreover, as the inquiry is extended back into the earlier historical periods, many documents are found which do much to complete the historical record of the nation or throw light on its development. In the present work, which can best be described as an attempt at an endeavor toward a check-list of State publications, the editor has undertaken to provide, so far as present resources permit, a key to the State publications of each State from its beginning, including in a supplemental division colonial or territorial issues or reprints of them. It has been an impossible task to make a complete bibliography, especially as in no State can there be found a complete set of the documents of the State itself. This preliminary endeavor has had, indeed, one useful effect in calling the attention of State Librarians and Historians to the gaps in their own collections and to the imperfections of their own records, and it is hoped that, on the completion of this work, librarians not only in the State Library of the State concerned, but in other libraries of the State and in libraries of other States, will make comparison of these records with their own collections or knowledge, and place their results at the service of their fellow-librarians. This will be a patriotic service to the State concerned, as well as a professional service to all libraries. The volume is so published, with column margins, as to invite such complementary work in each library, as well as to permit additional entry, in the proper place, of new volumes of current series or new publications. In many cases local or historical libraries were found to have documents or information which the State Library altogether lacked, and the editor extends especial thanks to the libraries not State libraries which have thus coöperated.

In the present publication the States have been arranged not alphabetically, after the usual and preferable catalogue method, but in a geographical order, in itself partly a historical order because of State development from the Atlantic toward the Pacific, which has been for the present purpose more practicable. The editor appreciates the justness of the criticism that an alphabetical arrangement of publishing departments would have had certain advantages, but this plan, in view of the variety of nomenclature of the several bureaus and of successive changes in name within a State, would have made comparison and continuity more difficult and have had many obvious disadvantages. The issues of each State and the names or official designations of officers vary so much that it seemed desirable to adopt some arrangement of entries which, even though somewhat arbitrary, would make search and comparison more easy. The plan adopted is to enter first that general publication of the State, if any, which collects into a volume, or series of volumes, its miscellaneous public documents, usually under the comprehensive title "Public Documents" or the like. The CONSTITUTION, including records of constitutional conventions and commissions, makes the first general division. Then follow the EXECUTIVE AND STAFF officers, who transact the routine business of the State; the inspectors, boards, commissions, etc., who care for the INSPECTION AND REGULATION of business in the State, as insurance, mines, railroads, etc., or record the statistics of labor, agriculture, schools, etc.; and the INSTITUTIONS through which business is carried on by the State, including its schools, library, hospitals, prisons, and reformatories, etc., as well as the societies which have State relations. The line of division is, of course, indefinite: a Superintendent of Public Instruction, for instance, is a staff officer who inspects and regulates the schools, and might be entered in either one of the three departments; in some cases the Land Office is an inspecting bureau, while in others it sells State lands and thus falls into the third category. The JUDICIARY is the next division, and in this are included the leading State reports and digests, though these are in many cases issued as private enterprises, the State buying a portion of the edition. Little attempt has been made, especially in the larger States, to schedule the reports of lower courts, which should be sought under the State name in the author alphabet of the American Catalogues. The LEGISLATURE follows, including session laws, codifications, etc.; compilations of laws on a special subject, as school laws, find proper place here or under the department officer, according to their publishing origin. Finally the MISCELLANEOUS or special issues, unclassified, are given, and this division includes some of the most valuable publications. A SUPPLEMENTAL list covers the pre-State period, colonial or territorial, including reprints or collections of documents belonging to that period. The supplemental lists of publications prior to organization as a State are necessarily most imperfect, consisting, indeed, of material incidentally obtained in the search for State publications proper. Miss Adelaide R. Hasse has happily made this imperfect endeavor less important by the publication as an American Historical Association monograph through the Government Printing Office in 1908 of her modestly titled but remarkable collection of "Materials for a bibliography of the public archives of the thirteen original States, covering the colonial period and the State period to 1789."

In the Southern States, which, during the period of the Civil War, 1861–65, were members of the Confederate States of America, the publications have been followed as fully as practicable through that period of disorganization, in which many of the regular series of State publications were interrupted and many of those published were destroyed by fire; no bibliographical distinction as to the changes in federal relations has been found necessary, as the documents themselves show no difference in this regard.

It should be said that while an attempt has been made to conform in a general method of treatment the lists of the several States, absolute uniformity has been impracticable, partly because each State issues its publications by a method all its own, but still more because of the insufficiency of the information on specific points. In a few instances the usual method of entry has been purposely varied for the sake of clearness, and an explanatory note or cross-reference given. No entry has been omitted because only fragmentary information could be obtained, the purpose of the list being to present at least a clue to all further sources of information. Endeavor has been made to verify and extend information on uncertain points by direct query to official or other authorities in the several States; nevertheless, it was impossible to verify all entries. Merely conjectural entries, as of unrecorded volumes in series supposed to be continued, have been avoided. In some few cases, however, misleading information may have led to entries of publications which have never had actual existence. Collectors of United States Government publications have sad remembrance of an elusive "Angora goat," a monograph on this subject being included in the official list of a certain government series, although as a matter of fact no such monograph was ever printed. Similarly, in the list of Illinois publications in the present work there is entry of Debates and Proceedings of the Constitutional Convention of 1847 in two quarto volumes, an entry made seemingly on good authority, though we are now assured by better authority that probably no such publication was issued. Efforts have been made to bring the list up to date of publication, but in some cases the necessary additional information was not furnished, and the absence of a recent issue from any serial list by no means implies the discontinuance of the series. Only matter published in separate form has been listed, and no attempt has been made to analyze contents of a volume. The general method of entry has been under the office or officer responsible for the issue of a document, regardless of its subject. Thus the general classification is that of the office of origin, subdivisions being by subject and date. The Legislature is thus the origin or general author of all committee reports, the committees being simply agents of the Legislature, while commissions are usually independent of and outside the Legislature; thus committee and commission reports on the same subject are given respectively under LEGISLATURE or INSPECTION or other division. For journals and legislative documents, naturally chronological, that order has been followed specifically in place of subject classification. Dates given as part of the title are either of the year or years covered by the report, or that of the signature to the document; dates separated from the title are those of publication; it is more than probable, however, that in some cases there has been confusion on this point. Place of publication has been specified only when known to be other than the present capital of the State — in Rhode Island, other than Providence.

The original list of State Publications in the American Catalogue of 1884–90, as well as the general plan, was chiefly the personal work of the editor. The list for the second period, in the American Catalogue for 1890–95, was compiled mostly by Miss Helen E. Haines, of the Library Journal. The compilation of the present comprehensive work was placed, for the New England States, in the hands of Miss Frances B. Hawley, later Superintendent of Branches in the Brooklyn Public Library system; for the North Central States, in her hands and those of Mr. W. N. Seaver, with advisory help of Miss Haines; and for the Western States and Territories and the Southern States, entirely in the hands of Mr. W. N. Seaver. The work was originally published in four parts, as above indicated, and some development of the plan and variations in methods will naturally be found in the successive parts. To the systematic skill and careful workmanship of the compilers is chiefly due a result which gives at least the semblance of a comprehensive and systematic bibliography to the most inadequate and perplexing of material.

The result is all the more to the credit of the compilers because the possibilities of pecuniary return precluded the use of paid assistant compilers. It was not expected from the beginning that the work would prove pecuniarily profitable or even cover its full cost, as it was planned by the editor as a labor of love in an important field of bibliographical research, following the example which Mr. George Iles had so excellently set in his generous contribution toward the advancement of the entire line of bibliographical work. It was hoped, however, that the manufacturing cost of the publication would be covered. This hope was promptly frustrated when the editor and the compilers faced the enormous mass of material, which seemed to grow before their eyes. The edition, limited to 500 copies, has not been fully subscribed, and the total return at the completion of publication has been under $2000, as against a manufacturing cost exceeding $5000. The sale of all the remaining available copies at the increased price of $10, to which the price was raised from the original subscription price of $5, would bring the total return to about $3000, leaving an approximate loss above $2000, to which is to be added the several thousand dollars involved in the labor of compilers and editor. It was in view of this fact and of the labor saved and value given to the State Libraries in the several States that the editor ventured to ask coöperation without pecuniary compensation and to hope that such coöperation might be generally afforded. In several States systematic and adequate help has been given by the State Librarian, or by the State Archivist, or State University or other State authorities, or by officers or librarians of State Historical Societies, or by librarians in leading libraries of the State. The lists for Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, and California, were furnished in nearly final shape by the State authorities, and specific recognition is made of their help and of that of other coöperators at the head of each State list. To all those who have joined in this "labor of love," without money and without price, even to the extent of a complimentary copy of the completed volume — many of these private persons from whom such service could scarcely be asked or expected — the cordial thanks of editor and of compilers are here tendered. For few States, however, did the list approach completeness, and in nearly every case additions were made or much editorial work done by the compilers. In the great body of States the enterprise commanded more or less sympathetic appreciation, but the State Librarians lacked the material, or were too busy, or had other reasons, for giving but imperfect coöperation. In more than one State promises that were never realized actually delayed publication. In some States the natural response that a State official could not be expected to do uncompensated work was frankly made. The fact that in many States the Secretary of State was ex officio State Librarian, a function to which he gave but perfunctory attention, that in others no trace of a State Librarian could be found, that in others the State Librarian had charge only of a law library, that in others the office had been given to a passé politician or one of his relatives or awarded through a "beauty contest" — all these were elements of discouragement not without humorous compensations. A few librarians will recall that dear and delightful State Librarian of Georgia, of happy memory, who imparted to a visiting delegation the important fact that he had found the books in his library without any arrangement whatever and had hit upon the happy device of arranging them in the order of the alphabet. The condition in another Southern State is shown in the following resolution of the Kentucky General Assembly of 1850:

Resolved . . . That the Committee on the Library be instructed to inquire into the present condition of the State Library and report whether or not there be in office at this time a State Librarian; and what action, if any, they deem necessary in the premises.

But within the years during which this bibliography has been in progress, a decided change for the better has been evident, and there have been accessions from many States to membership in the National Association of State Libraries, in whose meetings are to be found the same professional ideals and scholarly equipment that more and more distinguish the library profession.

It was hoped at the start that this bibliography could be completed and published by 1900, and a supplement or revised edition thereafter issued which would make the work comprehensive and accurate to the beginning of the twentieth century. As a matter of fact, the four parts have appeared practically at three-year intervals, so that the labor of a dozen years has been given to the work. In the New England States, therefore, the entries stop short of 1900, in the later lists the endeavor has been to bring series and individual entries up to 1900, but in some cases series entries have been continued and individual entries given to some extent to date of publication. Comprehensive entries beyond 1900 are not, however, to be expected. The editor regrets that it is impossible to present a supplement or to contemplate a revised edition, but he trusts that in the years to come the material of this work may form the basis for a really complete and adequate bibliography of State publications. Meantime, if the several State Librarians would add to their annual or biennial reports, first, a list of corrigenda and addenda to the entries for their State up to 1900, present as an appendix to each succeeding report a list of their own State publications for the preceding term, on a uniform plan to be worked out through the National Association of State Libraries, and finally work back in annual lists to cover the intervening period — then, with the present list to build upon, there will be the proper material for the work which the present editor has had in mind but found impossible of achievement. The imperfections of the present volume are more evident to the editor and the compilers than to any reader or to the severest critic. It is hoped, nevertheless, that this contribution to American bibliography may be the forerunner of a worthy bibliography of State publications which shall be complementary to a worthy bibliography of United States Government publications of the nineteenth century, and that the twentieth century may before long have a complete record of United States Government publications and of State publications, adequately planned to cover each succeeding decade.

PREFACE.

THE wealth of information, — historical, statistical, descriptive, scientific, and other, — hidden, because of imperfect bibliographical record, in the publications of the several States of the American Union, is second only to that in the publications of the United States Government, which also until recent years had been poorly recorded and inadequately known. Within the past decade much has been done in Government bibliography, and the organization of bibliographical work by the Superintendent of Documents brings the bibliography of national issues into a comprehensive and adequate system. Unfortunately, less progress has been made in the correlated field of State publications. The first endeavor to catalogue systematically the official issues of the several States of the Union was, so far as is known to the editor, the list of State publications given in the appendix to the American Catalogue of 1884–90. An attempt was then made to present as complete a bibliography as was possible for that period, — first, by direct correspondence with the State Librarian or other State officers of the several States; second, by the use of such incidental data as could be obtained from catalogues and reports of State libraries (those of Massachusetts being by far the best in this respect); third, by personal visits to State libraries, many of them having been visited by the editor in the year 1890–91 and since. At the beginning some State Librarians, notably those of Massachusetts, New York, and New Hampshire, responded promptly and fully; in other cases not a word could be had from the State Librarian, in many States a perfunctory officer, or from the Secretary of State or Commissioner of Statistics, who were also addressed; and in more than one case the State Librarian replied indignantly that he could not be expected to give information for nothing. Then, and to a large extent since, the Massachusetts State Library annual lists of accessions have been a chief source of information where that could not be had from a State. Some kind of a list for the 1884–90 period was, however, presented for each State. A second list, for 1890–95, was made a similar supplement in the American Catalogue for that period, and at that time better returns from other States, particularly those of the mid-West, Kansas, and California, were obtained.

In the past five years, while there has been no other endeavor toward a general bibliography of State publications, progress has been made in two directions. In several of the States special bibliographies have appeared, either of publications within the State or of State publications proper; and State Librarians have been vitalized and brought into line with general library progress by the organization of a National Association of State Librarians and a State Library Section of the American Library Association. Nevertheless, the office of State Librarian is still in some States perfunctory or merged into that of some other State official, and in several States the State Library and its executive post have been notoriously a football of politics, although the State Librarianship is one of the positions where experience, skill, and therefore continuity, are most needed, and which should therefore be most free from removal for partisan reasons. There has already been enough progress in reform, however, to make more possible than before a general bibliography of State publications.

The researches of the editor in this field have more and more shown how valuable is the material found here and there in the unorganized heap of State publications, or rather in the many heaps which make up the great aggregate. The variety of differentiation of State publications in the several States, while increasing the difficulties of the explorer in these bibliographical labyrinths, has in itself a distinctive and definite value. It is a happy feature of our federal system, as has before been pointed out, that one State desiring to experiment in legislation or administration may profit by the experiences of sister States which have already produced good or ill results from like experiments. It is true that a large proportion of State publications are not of general interest outside or indeed within the State, yet for comparative purposes their record may be important and valuable, and, aside from perfunctory or merely administrative reports, there is surprising wealth of material in State as well as government issues. Many of the States, particularly those of the far West and "the new South," issue fact-books as to their resources, etc., which can be had for the asking by public libraries, and which should be at the disposal of readers throughout the States from which emigration sets west and south. The regular or special reports of Boards of Agriculture, of Boards of Health, of Bureaus of Labor Statistics, of Insurance or Railroad Commissioners, the records of prison and reformatory development, the historical publications of several of the States, — all these are of real value to inquirers in other States, and many of them should be on the shelves of the more representative libraries.

Moreover, as the inquiry is extended back into the earlier historical periods, many documents are found which do much to complete the historical record of the nation or throw light on its development. In the present volume, which can best be described as an attempt at an endeavor toward a check-list of State publications, the editor has undertaken to provide, so far as present resources permit, a key to the State publications of each State from its beginning, including in a supplementary division colonial or territorial issues or reprints of them. It has been an impossible task to make a complete bibliography, especially as in no State can there be found a complete set of the documents of the State itself. This preliminary endeavor has had, indeed, one useful effect in calling the attention of State Librarians and historians to the gaps in their own collections and to the imperfections of their own records, and it is hoped that as the successive parts are published, librarians not only in the State Library of the State concerned, but in other libraries of the State and in libraries of other States, will make comparison of these records with their own collections or knowledge, and send promptly to the editor word of material which has so far escaped observation. This will be a patriotic service to the State concerned, as well as a professional service to all libraries. The volume is so published, with extra margin, as to invite such complementary work in each library, as well as to permit the addition in the proper place of new volumes of current series or new publications. In many cases local or historical libraries were found to have documents or information which the State Library altogether lacked, and the editor extends especial thanks to the libraries not State libraries which have thus coöperated.

It is not expected that this work will prove pecuniarily profitable, or even cover its cost, as it was planned by the editor as a labor of love in an important field of bibliographical research, following the example which Mr. George Iles has so excellently set in his generous contribution toward the advancement of another line of bibliographical work. But it is hoped that the volume may have sufficient pecuniary support to reduce the loss within such limits as will permit the issue later of another list which will include the additions and emendations supplied by the coöperative research asked, and will make as complete a record as possible of all State publications to the year 1900. If, however, support of the present enterprise should be withheld in the hope of obtaining a better list later on, that course would make it out of the question for the present editor to undertake a bettered bibliography in this field.

In the present publication the States have been arranged, not alphabetically after the usual and preferable catalogue method, but in a geographical order, in itself partly a historical order because of State development from the Atlantic toward the Pacific, which has been for the present purpose more practicable. This method of arrangement and the plan of issue in parts were adopted to bring together at the beginning the publications of the original or older States, which have had the most comprehensive and systematized series of publications, and it is hoped that the early publication of the bibliographies of these States may inspire librarians of other States to make their records as complete or adequate as possible. The issues of each State and the names or official designations of officers vary so much, that it seemed desirable to adopt some arrangement of entries, which, even though somewhat arbitrary, would make search and comparison more easy. The plan adopted is to enter first that general publication of the State, if any, which masses into a volume, or series of volumes, its general public documents. The CONSTITUTION, or records of constitutional conventions and commissions, makes the first general division. Then follow the EXECUTIVE AND STAFF officers, who transact the routine business of the State; the inspectors, boards, commissions, etc., who care for the INSPECTION AND REGULATION of business in the State, as insurance, mines, railroads, etc., or record the statistics of labor, agriculture, schools, etc.; and the INSTITUTIONS in which business is carried on by the State, including its schools, library, asylums, hospitals, prisons, and reformatories, etc., as well as the societies which have State relations. The line of division is, of course, indefinite: a Superintendent of Public Instruction, for instance, is a staff officer who inspects and regulates the schools, and might go in either one of the three departments; in some cases the Land Office is an inspecting bureau, while in others it sells State lands, and thus falls into the third category. The JUDICIARY is the next division, and in this are included the leading State reports, though these are in many cases issued as a private enterprise, the State buying a portion of the edition. In the case of reports and of session laws, the individual printer or publisher from whom they can be obtained at a stated price is usually indicated. No attempt has been made in such States as Massachusetts and New York to schedule the reports of lower courts, which should be sought under the State name in the author alphabet of the American Catalogue. The LEGISLATURE follows, including codifications, session laws, etc.; compilations of laws on a special subject, as school laws, find proper place here or under the department officer, according as they merely contain laws or are edited or annotated. Finally the MISCELLANEOUS OR SPECIAL issues, unclassified, are given, and this division includes some of the most valuable publications. A SUPPLEMENTARY list covers the pre-State period, colonial or territorial, including reprints or collections of documents belonging to that period. The supplementary lists of publications prior to organization as a State are necessarily most imperfect, consisting, indeed, of material incidentally obtained in the search for State publications proper; in this important field coöperation toward a fuller bibliography is especially needed.

It should be said that while an attempt has been made to conform in a general method of treatment the lists of the several States, absolute uniformity has been impracticable, partly because each State issues its publications by a method all its own, but still more because of the insufficiency of the information on specific points. In a few instances the usual method of entry has been purposely varied for the sake of clearness, and an explanatory note or cross-reference given. No entry has been omitted because only fragmentary information could be obtained, the purpose of the list being to present at least a clue to all future sources of information. Endeavor has been made to verify and extend information on uncertain points, by direct query to official or other authorities in the several States; nevertheless, it was impossible to verify all entries. Merely conjectural entries, as of unrecorded volumes in series supposed to be continued, have been avoided. Efforts have been made to bring the list up to date of publication, but in some cases the necessary additional information was not furnished, and the absence of a recent issue from any series list by no means implies the discontinuance of the series. Only matter published in separate form has been listed, and no attempt has been made to analyze contents of a volume. The general method of entry has been under the office or officer responsible for the issue of a document, regardless of its subject. Thus the general classification is that of the office of origin, subdivisions being by subject and date. The Legislature is thus the origin or general author of all committee reports, the committees being simply agents of the Legislature, while commissions are usually independent of and outside the Legislature; thus committee and commission reports on the same subject are given respectively under LEGISLATURE or INSPECTION or other division. For journals and legislative documents, naturally chronological, that order has been followed specifically in place of subject classification. Dates given as part of the title are either of the year or years covered by the report, or that of the signature to the document; dates separated from the title are those of publication; it is more than probable, however, that in many States there has been confusion on this point. Place of publication has been specified only when known to be other than the present capital of the State — in Rhode Island, other than Providence.

The original list, as well as the general plan, was chiefly the personal work of the editor. The second list was compiled mostly by Miss Helen E. Haines, of the Library Journal; the present list has been in the hands of Miss Frances B. Hawley, to whose systematic, skilled, and careful workmanship is due a result which gives at least a semblance of a comprehensive and systematic bibliography to the most inadequate, perplexing, and confusing of material.

The imperfections of these lists are more evident to the editor and the compilers than to any reader or the severest critic, but it is hoped, nevertheless, that this contribution toward American bibliography may be the forerunner of a worthy bibliography of State publications, which shall be complementary to a worthy bibliography of United States Government publications of the nineteenth century.

LEGISLATURE [called GENERAL ASSEMBLY].

Sessions semi-annual, beginning May and Oct., through 1818; annual, beginning May, 1819–76; annual, beginning Jan., 1877–87; biennial, beginning Jan. in odd years, 1889–99. There were extra sessions, either special or adjourned, June, Nov., and Dec. 1776, Aug. and Oct. 1777, Jan., Feb., and Oct. 1778, Jan. and Apr. 1779, Jan., Oct., and Nov. 1780, Feb. and Oct. 1781, Jan. 1782, Jan. 1789, Dec. 1790, Aug. 1813, Dec. 1836, Oct. 1842, Oct. 1861, Dec. 1862, Nov. 1863, and Jan. 1864; those in Oct. 1780 and Oct. 1781 taking the place of regular sessions.

It has been impracticable to obtain full and infallible information regarding the session laws and the revised statutes, there being no complete collection. The paging of the several compilations, revisions, and editions of the statutes, and the actual period covered by them, varies with the date of binding, owing to the practice of inserting subsequent session laws at the end of the volume. These later issues have not been listed unless pub. with a new main title-page.

Colonial laws will be found under Supplemental: Colonial, General Court; special laws issued by Adj.-gen., Comptroller, Sec. of State, Bank Com'rs, Bd. of Education, Com'rs of Common Schools, Supt. of Common Schools, Shell Fish Com'rs, Bd. of Health, Highway Com'r, Insurance Com'r, and R.R. Com'rs, will be found under those headings.

[Laws of the State.] Public acts; semi-annual 1776–1818, annual 1819–87, biennial 1889–99. v. p., 1776–1899. f°. and 8°.

Note. Called Public statute laws through May 1842. The laws were folios through 1795. Acts of each regular, special or adjourned sess. pub. by themselves, with the following exceptions:

Laws, Oct. 1782–Oct. 1783, publication doubtful.
Oct. 1795, pub. only in Revision of that year.
1821, pub. only in Revision of that year.
1824, pub. only in collection, with laws 1822 and 1823.
1837, pub. only in collection, with laws 1836.

Acts, Oct. 1861 and May 1862, pub. together only.
Nov. 1863 and Jan. 1864, pub. together and also with acts May 1864.
1868, pub. only with reprint of acts 1866 and 1867.
1891, no laws passed, owing to deadlock.

PREFATORY NOTE TO PART II.

IT was hoped that Part II of "State Publications" would follow within a year from the publication of Part I, and the whole work be completed by 1902. Various causes, especially the difficulty in getting authoritative original material from the State Libraries, have together resulted in such delay that the present part appears with an imprint three years later than Part I. It covers two groups of States: New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, formerly classed with Delaware as the Middle States; and Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, being those States north of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi river, originally classified as Western States, and in later years known as Central or Mid-West States. The designation of North Central States has been adopted as comprehending most clearly these two groups.

It is intended to complete the work by covering the States west of the Mississippi and south of "Mason and Dixon's line" and the Ohio, probably in a single third part, for the Western and Southern States. Most of these States have not so many publications as the States included in Parts I and II, and although the material is less organized in many of them, it is hoped to present the final part with less delay than in the preparation of the present part.

The imperfection of these lists, after all the attempts made and the co-operation obtained toward making them complete, will doubtless become evident in practical use of this bibliography; nevertheless, on the completion of the work a great advance will have been made in presenting a skeleton bibliography for the several States of the Union, and the editor regrets that the limited pecuniary support for this "labor of love" makes the deficit so large as to render improbable the publication of the revised and enlarged list to which he had looked forward. It is hoped, however, that State Librarians and other users of this work will send to the editor any further information that they obtain in regard to publications not here recorded and any corrections that should be made, with a view to a possible appendix of omissions and corrections.

This part follows in general the method adopted for the work at its commencement and carried out in the previous part by Miss Frances B. Hawley. The bibliographies of the States included in Part II were in large part collected and compiled by her, while the final shaping has been chiefly in the hands of Mr. W. N. Seaver, with the co-operation of Miss Helen E. Haines. In addition to the specific acknowledgment made at the head of each list to those who have furnished the large part of the material for their respective States or co-operated in the extension and revision of the lists, general acknowledgment should be made to the many others who have contributed in lesser degree to the completeness or accuracy of the results. For particulars as to the plan and method employed, the preface included in Part I should be consulted.

Journals of the Provincial Congress, Provincial Convention, Committee of Safety, and Council of Safety, 1775–77. 1842. 2 v. f°.

Note. Issued by State Legislature. The Provincial Convention was held April 20–22, 1775, to choose delegates to Continental Congress. Provincial Congress was held 1775–1777, and was really the successor of the Old General Assembly, filling the interim till the Legislature met under the Constitution in 1777. The Congresses became regular legislative bodies by constitutional approval.

Material furnished by E. C. Richardson, Librarian Princeton University, and Henry C. Buchanan, State Librarian.

Dutch in possession, 1610. Embraced in various patents and grants by England, 1620–1667. Grant to Berkeley and Carteret, to be called New Cæsarea or New Jersey, 1664. Divided into East and West Jersey, 1676; joined with New England, 1688; Jerseys united into one royal province, 1702. Declaration of State independence and adoption of a constitution, 1776. Ratification of Federal constitution, 1787.

Legislative documents; annual, 1852–1901. 8°.

Note. Include Governor's message and rpts. of State officers, boards, commissions, etc. Through 1851 the various rpts. were generally printed in the Journal and Minutes; some of them were reprinted separately, and from 1847–51 a certain no. of copies of these bound up together without title-page. In 1852 the separately printed rpts. were gathered under the title of Appendix to Senate Journal or Appendix to Assembly Minutes or Appendix to House Journal, the Senate App. and House App. being identical. In 1862 the App. became the Legislative Docs., half title-page only 1862–65. In 1878–79, v. bound in two pts.; 1880–85, pub. in 2 vs.; 1886–89, 3 vs. annually; 1890, 4 vs.; 1891–1901, 5 vs. annually.

Up to 1888 the Legislative Docs. bore the number on outside; and on half title-page the year of the legislative sess. In 1889 the half title-page repeated the 1888, while binders' title gave 1889; and for subsequent years, until sess. of 1896, the outside date is for year of sess. The docs. of 1896 are marked, outside and in, 1895, and the following years correspond; the year refers therefore to year covered by report, not year of sess. Not all the reports are contained in the Legislative Documents, but selections made by the Printing Board.

INSPECTION AND REGULATION.

[Agriculture.] Board of Agriculture (1851–). Annual report, 1851–1900/01. '52–1901. 8°.

Note. 1851 wrongly marked 1852. V. 15, 1873, is called the 23d ann. rpt., from which date there has been 1 v. a year. Rpt. for 1853 contains a report of a geological survey of the State by R. T. Brown, "Geological Agent." 27th rpt. contains an index of rpts. for years 1851–77. None of the ann. rpts. are in the Documentary journals, but in 1874, 76, 80, 82 there were financial rpts. which are in Documentary journals.

LEGISLATURE. [Called GENERAL ASSEMBLY.]

Sessions annual to 1851; biennial since, in odd years, beginning in January. The 42d sess. is styled 43d; the 43d, 44th; and so on to date. There were special sessions, sometimes designated "called sessions," in 1858, 61, 65, 69, 72, 75, 77, 79, 81, 85.

[Laws of the State.] Laws, annual 1817–51, biennial 1852–97. ea. 1 v. 8°.

Note. As the sessions under the Constitution of 1816 usually began in December, the laws were usually designated as of the year following the commencement of the session. The laws of 1838 were included in the Revised Statutes pub. in that year. Laws of the 44th sess. designated 45th sess., by a misprint, and the error has been continued in subsequent sessions. Special session laws since 1851 bound separately, except 1875, 77, 79, 81, 85. There were also separate volumes, of "Special" or "Local" Acts in 1818, 24, 31, 35–37, 39–52, and of "Militia Laws" in 1824 and 1831. For full description and tabulation of sessions and laws see "A Descriptive Catalogue of the Official Publications of Indiana," which is no. 5 of Ind. Hist. Soc'y Pamphlets, by D. W. Howe.

[History.] State Historical Society (1849–). Annual report, 21st–32d, 1875–86. 10 pm. 8°.

Note. The 21st rpt. was the first published in separate pamphlet form. Earlier rpts. will be found in the Collections. Previous to 1887, only the ann. rpt. of the executive committee was printed, — the numbering being that of the rpt. and not of the annual meeting at which it was presented (i.e., the first ann. rpt. of the committee was submitted at the second annual meeting, and so on). But commencing with 1887 (the 34th annual meeting), the Proceedings of the meeting were printed, together with all rpts. and papers presented thereat, and the publication took on the number of the meeting. This accounts for the apparent hiatus between the 32d ann. rpt. (1886), and the Proceedings of the 34th Annual Meeting (1887). These respective publications are consecutive.
